Funding Opportunity – Call for Applications

Deadline: 15 December 2023

From 2024 onwards, the FSP Globalgeschichte will fund smaller-scale projects related to its annual theme. In 2023-24 the FSP will focus on intersecting inequalities in a global perspective. For this purpose, we aim to think about various dimensions of inequality, such as income and property relations, urban-rural divides, gender orders, and labour relations – across different times and regions. For this annual theme we will collaborate with the research group Figurations of Inequality.

For this Call for Applications, the following categories can be funded with a maximum amount of 500 Euros: events, publications (language editing, image rights, open access), travel costs and other formats.

The deadline is 15 December; a second call related to our annual theme Intersecting Inequalities will be issued early next year (deadline 15 March).

Please send the following material to globalgeschichte.histkult@univie.ac.at:

- Short description of your project (max 1 page): Please describe your project as clearly as possible, including its relation to global history and the annual theme, the time frame, and the costs
- Short CV
